This kind of analysis is time-consuming and it has to be automated for many practical purposes. So, it is always best to get help from a professional consultant who understands your problem and helps solve it. If you are also looking for a domain expert in SEO, your search ends here! At iProspect, we understand how critical it is to see quick results when it comes to SEO. This is why we are always willing to go an extra mile to help you with a better page speed! What is Page Speed and Why It Is Important? Optimizing your page speed is so important because it impacts the overall usability of your website. For most users, a website that takes too long to load is a major irritant. This is because it makes it hard to navigate, and many users just give up before they get a chance to read anything.

You can fix this by optimizing the speed of the pages on your website. This is the task of a webmaster. The webmaster's job is to take a look at the speed of any page on your site and then make changes that will help improve it. However, this doesn't mean that you have to wait until the page is done before you start. You have to make sure that you start optimizing your pages as soon as you finish making them. One of the first things that you should do is to check the speed of a page using an online tool. This will not only give you a general idea about how fast the page is, but it will also help you identify which pages to optimize first. You should focus on pages that have a long load time, because these are most likely going to be the ones with the most room for improvement. How to Measure Page Speed on Website There are many online tools that you can use to measure the speed of a page. However, you can't use them to optimize your pages because they only tell you whether the speed is good or bad. They will not give you any suggestions as to how to fix it. The speed of a page is not something you can calculate because it is highly subjective. What works for one person may not work for you. You can, however, try to optimize the speed of a page by following some simple steps. If a page is slow, it is because it has more than 3 requests. You should try to reduce the number of requests. This can be done by removing large images from your
