I am trying to design a good software testing automation tool and am searching for a good Sudoku solver, that is, a solver in Python or some other language. Googling about Sudoku solvers comes up with a lot of Sudoku online game sites - which are too specific for my needs. Since open-source software is usually developed to solve specific problems, I want to know if anyone has used a good Sudoku solver written in Python? Update: We are looking for a bare-bones solver - i.e. not required bells and whistles like a GUI or feature-rich puzzle editor. Hence I am specifically looking for a bare-bones Sudoku solver in Python or some other language. A: Sudoku solving is an NP-hard problem, so no algorithm can hope to find all solutions in reasonable time. In practice it's a boring problem but with limited features, and most algorithms don't need to work too well to find many solutions. My personal favorite is the current leader:
